Types of Copyright

 Traditional copyright - 95 years from publication if owned by corporation OR death of individual plus 70 years

Creative Commons - less restrictive than traditional copyright, but many varieties including: non-commercial use only, commercial use, can't resize or change, can make changes, give credit or not

Public Domain - free use of any kind even for commercial use; pre-1923 works or if owner specifies public domain

FAIR USE

Fair Use means you can use some copyrighted materials in certain instances. There are no hard and fast rules, each case must be evaluated separately.

Fair Use Guidelines:

Purpose of use: Are you creating a new work, or just copying the original? Fair Use must be transformative and non-commercial.	Nature of copyrighted work: Factual is better than creative.
Amount of work used: Less is better. Two pages or 10% are often the rule of thumb.	Effect of new work on used work: Are you competing with the original work, or will it be devalued in any way? Fair Use does not allow your new work to compete with the original.

Allowed Fair Use:

- Research and scholarship - quotes with proper citing, paraphrasing another work
- Reporting - news stories
- Criticism and commentary
- Parody
- Some non-commercial use
